THE QUITTAPAHILLA

The Quittapahilla

Nineteen Sixteen

Junior Annual

of

Lebanon Valley College

To those who love our L. V. C.
To those who praise her name
To you we send this volume,
Not for laud or fame,
But as a meek reminder
That her worth is aye the same.

No doubt we made some blunders
Through lack of thought and skill,
Look not to our achievement
But rather to our will,
And as you read remember,
L. V. is L. V. still.

A Loyal Supporter and True Friend of Lebanon Valley College

HARON S. KREIDER was born three miles southwest of Annville on the twenty-sixth of June, 1863. He attended the public schools and later spent a year and a half at Lebanon Valley College. Then he went to Allentown Business College, from which he graduated at the age of sixteen. Shortly after his graduation he went to Missouri, where he worked on a farm for some time. Then he was employed as a clerk in a store. In 1883 he came East and secured a position in Dissinger's store at Campbelltown. The following year he worked at what was then called Kelly's Corner. Soon after this he became manager of Dissinger's store. In 1885 he married Elizabeth B. Horst. The next year he began to farm and he established Lawn Station on the Cornwall and Lebanon Railroad. He also located a post office, a warehouse, a grist mill and coal and lumber yards at that place. He remained there until 1892, when he moved to Palmyra, where he operated coal yards, a warehouse and a grist mill.

In 1893 he rented the old plant of the Palmyra Boot and Shoe Company and started in the shoe business. In 1894 he built a factory in Annville. This factory was enlarged from time to time until it reached its present size. Mr. Kreider now controls four factories, one in each of the following towns: Palmyra, Annville, Elizabethtown and Middletown. These have a daily output of 15,000 pairs of shoes, which are delivered to the merchants through four distributing houses, located at New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, and St. Louis. Mr. Kreider has developed his business until now his shoes are well known throughout the United States.

Mr. Kreider was chairman of the building committee of the United Brethren Church at Annville, of which church he is an active and influential member. He has always taken an interest in Lebanon Valley College, and was elected to the Board of Trustees of the institution in 1911. Two years later he became vice president of the board, and in 1914 he was made president.

He is also interested in politics. In November, 1912, he was elected by the people of his district to the House of Representatives of the United States. Two years later he was re-elected by a large majority. He is also one of the directors of the Annville National Bank and vice president of the Farmer's Trust Company of Lebanon. As he has many business, social and political interests, so he has many interests in his home, for he has seven sons and three daughters.

Quittapahilla

THE name of the year book of Lebanon Valley College has been changed from "The Bizarre" to "The Quittapahilla."

The name formerly used has served its day and purpose well. But since conditions in college life and circles have changed so materially, and Lebanon Valley has been growing in every department so gratifyingly; a name has been adopted that has strong local significance, one that can not be applied to any other institution, and one which gives our college an individuality she so well deserves. This change has not been made without due deliberation; nor without the approval of the Faculty, the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association, and friends of the school.

Therefore it has been named after a stream which bounds our college town on the west and on the south, with which the alumni, friends and students are so well acquainted; and which at the same time, calls up many a pleasant memory of the past, —"The Quittapahilla."

FLOW gently on, thou wand'ring stream of rocks and rills;
Glide on amongst the evergreens and rambling hills.
Sing on!—Thy music fills the air with joy and mirth,
Ringing down the glade, along the grassy earth.
The clear blue waters and the velvet banks of green;
Majestic trees swing to and fro and o'er thee lean.

Flow gently on, and may our love for you increase;
Glide on! And may we e're depart from thee in peace.
Sing on! And when in future years we're troubled sore,
Our thoughts will wander to those college days of yore.
Flow on! Glide on! Sing on! Repeat thy work of old;
Keep on! The good that thou hast done can ne'er be told.

THROUGH these classic halls of learning have our footsteps echoed, died—
Soon the footprints that we left will be effaced by life's great tide;—
Other voices now resound within the halls that knew us well—
Gone for all, for some forever, are the songs we loved to swell.

But although we be forgotten, as the years go rolling on—
Though our deeds may fade and dwindle like the distant stars at dawn—
Though a greater Alma Mater, with a greater need of fame,
May forget that once we labored to enhance her noble name—

We have never, and shall never, in the darkest days to come,
Lose the memories of those happy days in this, our college home;
Other fields will claim our labors, newer ties replace the old—
But our love for Lebanon Valley never can, nor will grow cold.

As a sign of recollection, as a token of esteem,
What for us could be more fitting, what to others better seem
Than that we should leave a marker that will stand before these walls
As a welcome and a guide for those that enter in these halls.

Rather than a thing of beauty that will shortly pass away—
Rather than a store of knowledge that will last for but a day—
Rather than some slight convenience, rather than the hues of dawn—
We have built in stone eternal, that shall last when we are gone.

Stand, O stones, a massive welcome to the stranger passing through,
Stand, and may the loyal students be as firm and strong as you,—
Till these massive stones have crumpled, till their strength and shape have passed—
Till the dust shall claim its children, NINETEEN FOURTEEN'S love shall last.

CARL F. SCHMIDT, '14.

THE above picture represents quite well the splendid and substantial new King of Prussia stone Entrance to the college grounds. It was erected by the members of the class of 1914 and is a very fitting evidence of devotion and loyalty to their Alma Mater. It is a thing of beauty and is much appreciated not only by the authorities of the college but also by all the students and friends of the institution.

Advancement

LEBANON Valley College stands for the fullest development of young men and women in head, heart and body. Its work is divided into five departments, namely: College, Academy, Music, Oratory and Art.

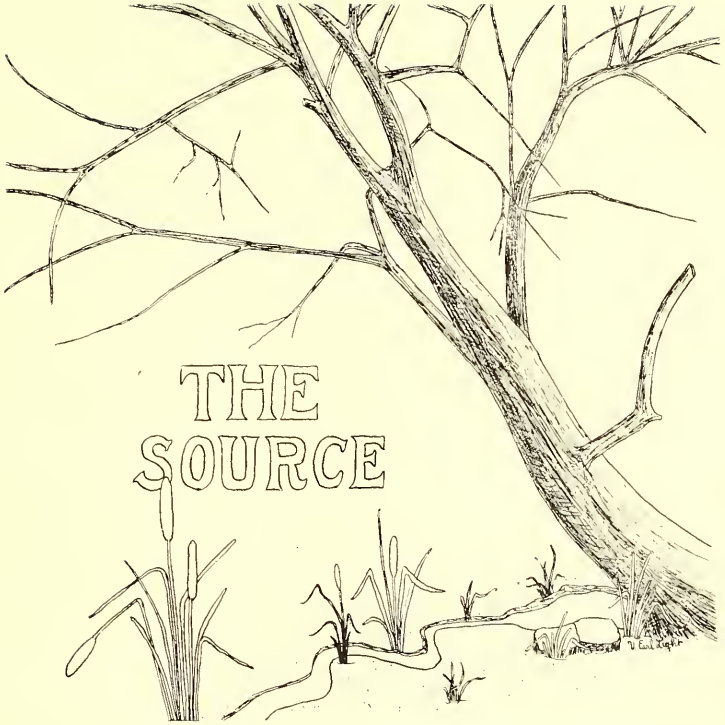

We have a good school, fine faculty, splendid student body, new modern buildings, excellent laboratories, workable library, large campus, new gymnasium, athletic field and track, winning athletics, healthful climate, and our students "make good" both in and out of school. The splendid, loyal spirit of students and graduates is shown by the equipping of a fine gymnasium by the alumni in 1913, the installing of a large Howard Clock by the class of 1913, and the erection of a beautiful and substantial King of Prussia stone entrance to the college grounds by the class of 1914.

Our buildings, including grounds and equipment are valued at $300,000. However, we must build larger. The number of students has increased recently and crowded our buildings beyond their capacities so that more than a score of young men are rooming in temporary quarters, and the Senior girls are rooming in a rented house. The dining hall, though accommodating 120 boarders, is inadequate and 60 students take their meals in the parlor. The growth of the student body is remarkable. Ten years ago there were 22 freshmen, two years ago 38, last year 57 and this year 104 matriculated. There are 234 students in the college department. The total number in all departments two years ago was 242, last year 305, and this year there will be 360 or more, being an increase of 50 per cent. in two years. We must have more buildings and more endowment to accommodate the rapidly increasing student body, and we believe they will come. A campaign is now being carried on to raise an endowment fund of $250,000.

The Freshmen linger near the source
Where they can best be fed.
Farther down the stream we find
The Sophs are riding on.
The Juniors are quite near the goal
For now the stream is wide,
But the Seniors have emerged, and now—
Are sailing on the open sea.

Senior Class History

Ah, Past you dare not claim a
Nobler class than this—
Nor nobler class has less of blame,
Nor blameless class has greater name,
Nor greater name has grander fame,
Nor fame—another class like this.

TO recall our achievements and recount our deeds would lead our history beyond the space allotted; but even space would never do justice to the innumerable victories by the heroes and heroines of the class, 1915.

This invincible class of Lebanon Valley College began its career, September 13, 1911. As the green army of General Washington through prudence and sagacity moved around the over-confident and experienced army of Cornwallis until it reached the grand victory grounds of Princeton, so the "Big Greenies", as we were called, moved around our foe, the Sophs, until we added to the Annals of our freshman the grand victories of "The Posters," "Tug-of-War," "Baseball," "Undisturbed Banquet," "Class Scraps."

The next year we returned to Old Lebanon Valley as Sophs. Our hopes were increased for renewed victories in college activities. As the story is often repeated that the Sophs are the outcast class, we showed the dear old college that we could not be cast out but, instead, could work, toil and fight for "A place on the Sun." Through our efforts we again increased the annals of our class by adding the victories, "Football," "Baseball," "Tug-of-War," "Debate," "Class Scraps" and the first successful minstrel to be given by a Sophomore Class of Lebanon Valley.

As Juniors we determined not only to retain our former prestige, but reach out farther for still greater conquests. Under the banner of "The White and The Blue" we strove toward our goal with new zeal. Our motto "Speo sibi ques-que" had become a password of every Junior. This was his ambition "For Old L. V. C. and 1915." For the second time our dramatic talents were proved when we rendered the junior play, "A Scrap of Paper." Our Bizarre won admiration and respect for the class. And now the last year of "the" life is before us. As we look back over the years we must say with the sage of old, "It was good for us to be here." In a short time each of us will go into the battle of life. Then let us remember that as we strove and thereby became victors in college life, so may we strive with all sincerity in the battle of life and even there become conquerors.

Lebanon Valley 1916.

Junior History

FROM the time that the Class of 1916 entered Lebanon Valley College and chose for its motto "Faca non verba," the professors and others have realized that this class was destined to be different from all the preceding ones. In the first place the fact that we came to Annville at the time when Doctor Gossard took charge of the affairs of the college, had a profound influence upon us. Then, too, we are to graduate in the year in which the college will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary, the year in which the endowment fund is to be completed. These facts, together with what members of the faculty and some of the students have said about us have made us feel that for some reason much is expected from us.

With the exception of the sophomore-freshman debate, in which many persons considered us victorious in spite of the decision of 2-1 in favor of the sophomores, the events of our freshman year were not very unusual. Of course, we had a banquet and the other social events which freshmen enjoy, but it was not until we were sophomores that we began to do things differently. We presented a flag-pole to the college, and agreed to keep a flag upon it as long as we were at Lebanon Valley. We selected our junior play, we bought class rings, and elected our staff for the year book, all without any dissension among our members. The fact that we are unusually congenial for a large class has made our many sociables especially successful. Several of our members have greatly beautified the campus by making flower beds and planting flowers, and we are all interested in the further improvement of the grounds and the walks. During our sophomore year several new athletes joined our class. The victories of the track team were due almost entirely to the members of 1916.

Our class is different from others, too, in that, although we have lost many of those who entered college with us, we have found so many others that we are now a larger class than we were when we first entered these halls. We have as juniors more women members than any other class has had, and it is likely that one or two others will graduate with us in the eventful year of 1916. To us has come the privilege and the responsibility of changing the name of the year book and of living up to our reputation and aim: "Doing not saying."

Attend you to this maiden, this gentle maiden fair,
Her home is in York County, she's much beloved there.
She came here as a Sophomore in very quiet mien,
And outside of her classes, was very little seen.

But she has now much altered, is very blithe and free,
She feareth now no more, to be in manly company.
She studies classics all night long, so her classmates tell us,
Of Aristotle and the Gods of Rome and ancient Hellas.

For many tricks she plays;
Her laugh once heard you'll ne'er forget,

When the registrar received Jake's "rep"
He forthwith booked him as a "prep",
For he hailed from York Collegiate,
And was not yet a graduate.

Yet e'er so many weeks were o'er
They rated him a Sophomore,
For it was shown to all concerned
That he had such a status earned.

In all his studies he's a star,
There is no "stude" like "Jake" by far,
For there's no time to him so dear,
As when a science Prof. he's near.

Sophomore History

ON September 12, 1913, a great event took place at Lebanon Valley College, when the Class of 1917 organized and elected its officers. Two days later the Sophs awoke only to learn that we had pasted our posters all over town the night before. Some time after, we overwhelmingly defeated them in the tug-of-war by the score, 7-0. In football we were not so successful, losing by the score, 6-0.

On December 8, 1913, nearly every member of the class was present at our Freshman Banquet, held at the Wheatland Hotel, Lancaster, Pennsylvania. In basketball we showed everyone that we could not be surpassed. Now we have the enviable honor of being the "Interclass Basketball Champions, Season 1913-1914." Thus ended our most brilliant career as freshmen.

Early in the fall of 1914 we were back again with renewed hopes and aspirations. Yes—it was true—the entering freshman class appeared as though it might need watching, but we soon discovered that we had nothing to fear from them. It happened that both our class and the class of 1918 chose the same night to put up their posters. However, ours had been decorating the town some hours before the newcomers began posting theirs. The whole freshman class spent the next morning protecting one poster while we were laughing up our sleeves, thinking of the many yellow warnings which had escaped the eyes of the formidable (?) class of 1918. Almost a week before their banquet took place, we knew all about it. In order to frighten them a little, we captured a number of their fellows and concealed them for a short time. Then with the magnanimity, characteristic of our class, we released them in time to go to York and have a good time.

We were very much disappointed to learn that the freshmen would be obliged to forfeit all further athletic contests to us, on account of their persistent and arrogant disobedience to the rules of the Senior-Junior Council. We feel very sure that we could have carried off the laurels in football, basketball and base ball. As to the debate we have every prospect of winning a glorious victory. The Class of 1917 can not be excelled in college spirit. We furnish some of the best material in the school for football, basketball and baseball. Next year's football captain is a member of 1917. Not only do we hold a high place in athletics but in class work as well. The Class of 1917 has one of the most brilliant futures possible. No one doubts but that even after graduation—"seventeen" will be a great credit to her alma mater.

Freshman History

WHEN we the Class of 1918 entered Lebanon Valley College we were filled with great fears, hopes and expectations, however, after the first few days had passed we realized that we had nothing to fear, not even the Sophomores. We organized in the Academy Building as the Class of 1918 without the least opposition from the Sophomores.

After quite a time, the Sophomores gathered sufficient courage to display their posters. They had intended to decorate the town with them, but alas! when the SEVEN posters were still wet with paste, they vanished and were seen no more.

Finally the long expected day of the tug-of-war contest came, and on the athletic field there stood two opposing lines. The Sophomores, confident of victory, were present with radiant faces and jubilant choruses; but as the contest drew to a close, nothing could be heard save the hearty cheering of the Freshmen. The victory was ours. Immediately after the contest a party was held in honor of the boys who won for us the privilege of displaying our colors.

Our greatest victory, however, was the banquet. The Sophomores, in their "great wisdom and power," thought that they would prevent some of our number from attending this notable event, but to their chagrin and surprise, they found that they were not the chief authorities of the school. The banquet was, therefore, held at the appointed time in the National Hotel at York.

We have already proved that we are not only quantity but also quality. We have contributed to the 'varsity in football and basketball and have done the same in baseball. We are also represented in the Glee Club. In the class room, too, we have shown our ability. Thus it can be seen that we are active in every phase of college life.

Can we not feel a just sense of pride as we survey our victories in the first year of our college life? May we all try to do our utmost to further the future activities of our Alma Mater, and ever keep in mind our noble motto: Non qui multus sed qui bene.

Academy History

AS near as can be determined Lebanon Valley Academy had its beginning in 1834 as a private school in the Saylor carriage works on White Oak Street. It was called into existence by the special need for an institution of learning in Annville and the surrounding districts. From its origin it has faithfully endeavored to supply that great need. Its usefulness was soon demonstrated and to give it greater opportunity a new building was erected in 1836, on the present site, whereupon the school was removed to its new home. In 1858 the present building was erected. When in 1868 it was donated to the new institution, Lebanon Valley College, the Academy also became part of that larger institution. Until 1904 the college and the academy were independently operated. Realizing the valuable material always found in the academy it was determined that same year to make it an integral part of the college.

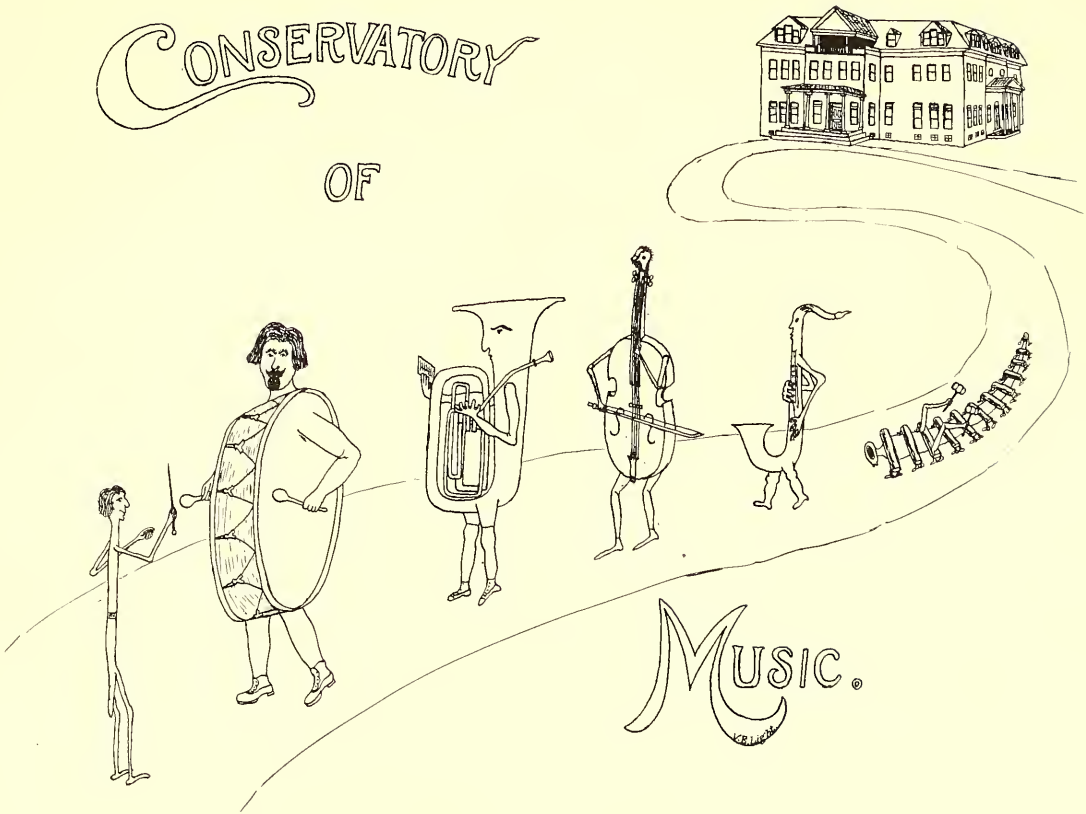

For eight years the Academy grew and flourished under the direction of Prof. H. E. Spessard. During the summer of 1912 notable changes were made. The old Academy building, abandoned for more than six years, was remodelled as the new home of the Academy. At the same time the present Principal was given charge. For three years earnest and successful work has rewarded his efforts.

The athletic efforts of the Academy has lately suffered an eclipse, for many of its men are needed to round out the college teams, whose records have overshadowed everything else. But in interclass athletics the "Preps" have held their own, and last year succeeded in trimming every team but one in the league and landed in second place, the end of the race. This year's prospects are as brilliant as those of the past, and we feel proud of our team, with which we are confident that we shall win a majority of the games played.

The graduating class of 1914 was next to the largest class which the institution has ever graduated, being surpassed only by the class of 1912 with thirteeen members. When school opened last fall many new faces were to be seen. A great number of them will graduate this year, and we are sure that the class of 1915 will be worthy of its predecessor, the class of 1914.

Our members have been active in all phases of college activity and have shown themselves eager in spirit to attain to the wisdom and distinction of college men.

The past year was the most pleasant one in the annals of the Academy. It was marked by hard work and many pleasant social functions. This year bids fair to excel all others in achievements, joy and spirit.

TRIBUTARIES

Tributaries flowing from a hundred limpid springs,
Its waters sweet and clear,
Winding round until it finds the thirsty stream below
And fills it with good cheer.

To college life these Tributaries add new spice and zeal,
So student take your fill;
Come then! Tributaries, Come! Increase as years roll on.
This is our sincere will.

Recapitulation

This has been, in every respect a successful year in Athletics. We can look back over the year's work with a sense of gratification. In football we find that we have scored a far greater number of points than our opponents. The same is true in basketball, even though the schedule was an exceptionally difficult one from the standpoint of teams played. The results in track, too, are very encouraging. This is, in a measure, the beginning of a new era in this department. We could not have anticipated a better baseball season than this one of 1915. With a strong pitching staff of five, Lebanon Valley swept everything before it.

We accomplished these results without a single "ringer." All 'Varsity men were (in every sport) bona fide students.

Tennis

SOME years ago there was considerable interest taken in tennis. So much so, indeed, that three new courts were made. The pendulum of interest in this sport then swung back, hanging there for several years. During this period two of the courts were allowed to become covered with grass and weeds.

In the fall of 1913 history began to repeat itself when a new wave of enthusiasm again swept over the student body. One of these old courts was cleared of the grass, with which it had become replete, by the class of 1914, while their cousins, the class of 1916, did the same to the other court.

Last fall, in a progressive tournament of the girls, Margaret Engle, proving herself champion, was accordingly presented with a handsome Spalding racket. This racket was given by the Spalding House of Philadelphia.

So great is the interest now taken by the students in this sport that it is a common thing to see all three courts in use while several students are anxiously waiting for the court.

Such teams as the Lebanon Business Men and the Hummelstown Racket Club were playing last spring. This spring, however, for the first time we played college teams. On the 28th and 29th of May we were one of the four colleges represented in a quadrangular meet played on the courts of Dickinson College at Carlisle. The other participating colleges were Bucknell and Franklin and Marshall.

Set your ribs in motion friend, take off that sordid frown;
Throw your heavy cares aside, and be for once a clown.
Make your weary side to vibrate, as in days of youth.
Bury deep those horrid blues, to laugh is not uncouth.—
For in the forest I believe, I hear a happy note—
Ripple! Ripple! all the streams.
Giggle! Giggle! so it seems.

Whatever work you'll try to do, you'll find some opposition.
Crying does not help a bit, to solve the proposition.
So you might as well be gay, laugh failure in the face.
Come, forget your many woes, a smile best wins the race.
For in the very heart of nature, I'm sure I hear a note.
Ripple! Ripple! all the streams.
Giggle! Giggle! so it seems.

Lebanon Valley's Battle Song

TUNE (Militant Suffragette)

I

To L. V. C. the victory, to White and Blue the praise,
Our voices blend, and help will lend, our ranks are ever true,
This day ye son, will be the one, the banner we will raise,
Then through the sky, so high will fly, the colors white and blue.

CHORUS

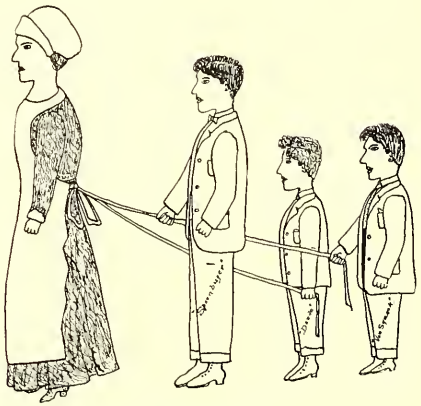

Then on to victory! Our victorious banner gaily fly,
Our team is always on the jump and can't be beat,
Triumphantly victorious never know defeat.
Then on to victory! White and Blue will be our standards true;
Forward! Ye sons of L. V. C., yours will be the victory.

II

To L. V. C. the spoils of war, to White and Blue the fame,
We won't be slack, nor will we lack, to fight unto the end,
This glorious day, in full array, we'll celebrate the name,
Of her whose cause, will bring applause, our good and noble friend.

Was Ist Liebe?

LIEBE ist ein kitzliges Gefühl wenn eins anfangst zu fühlen dasz es ein Gefühl fühlen werde welches es nie vordem gefühlt hatte. Wenn ein Junger fürs erste Mal sich verliebt mit einem Fraulein, dann drängt die Liebe mit allen Mitteln ein und er lauft aufwärts wie ein Soldat und er fangt an langen Hosen zu tragen. Sein Haar straubt sich in die Höhe und es gibt ein Englischer "Teddy Bear." Der beste Zeichen dasz der Junger verliebt ist, ist wenn er sein Appetit verliert. Als er dieses übermacht dann pfeift er immer auf der Strasse und vergisst die ganze Welt auszer sich und seinem Fraulein. Es giebt nur eine Welt für ihn und diese Welt verfasst nur zwei Leute. Seine Mathematik ist gezwirnt weil er denkt dasz eins mehr eins wäre nur eins und darum passiert er nicht die Prüfung. Die Leute sagen er wäre verrückt das Fraulein zu heiraten aber a sagt, "Ich werde eine Chance nehmen."

They're Still Tied Fast

A Call to Duty

Come now brother, sing our song,
"Votes for women," loud and strong,
With your voice so sweet and clear;
You're our champion—that's a dear.

Brothers, help us win this fight,
Help us set the country right;
Join our cause, or fade away.
Now don't kick; you've had your day.

Don't be frightened, Maiden Aunts,
We don't want our brothers' pants,
Cast-off clothes that they've outgrown!
We want things we'll call our own.
We're not after mere applause,
What we want is rights and laws.

We're grown tired of playing Eve,
Enough we're suffered we believe;
Tired of taking all the blame
For Father Adam's sin and shame.

So come now, men, step into line;
To heed this call if you decline,
You'll have to cook your own three meals,
And then 'you'll know how woman feels.

Don't you worry, we're on deck,
And there won't be any wreck
Of the race that's prophesied
By the fraid-cat Anti's side.

Come now, be a suffragette—
We're the greatest ever yet.
Better join us while you can;
Step up like a little man.
Come now, for the love of Mike!
Join us on our suffrage hike.

Mothers, daughters, sisters, aunts
And you critters wearin' pants,
March up lively, now be spry,—
"Votes for women" is our cry.

ACT I, TIME JAN. 31, 1915

Scene I. Office of Registrar. Table strewn with paper. General air of untidiness in room.

Registrar, working at his table. Enter to him Monitor.

MONITOR (holds out papers and speaks slowly): "Here, Professor, are the records of chapel cuts for the month of—"

REGISTRAR: "Don't bother me! Don't bother me! ! Get out of this! Get out! ! I'm busy getting out report cards. This is more important than your chapel cut record."

MONITOR (unmoved): "But, Professor, this is important, because the spiritual welfare of the student is concerned. Why Jones, McNelly, McLaughlin, Gingrich, Jamison and Guy Stambach hardly ever come to chapel unless there is some special speaker such as a suffragette. For the sake of their souls we ought to do something. What's the use of rules if we don't enforce them. I don't want to do this work if it doesn't amount to anything."

REGISTRAR (looking over reports): "That's bad! tut-tut, that's bad! Well, I'll look into this." (Exit Monitor).

REGISTRAR (musing): "Huh, I don't give a hang about their spiritual welfare. I want 'em to attend chapel so I don't have these bloomin' records to bother with."

Curtain.

Scene II. Registrar's Office. Time, the next morning.

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY (continuing the subject): "Professor, where are these delinquents?"

REGISTRAR (busy as usual): "Don't know. Can't tell you."

Knock. Enter Jones, McLaughlin, McNelly, Holsinger, Stambach. Hurry up! Hurry up! Sit down! Take chairs!

JONES: "Thanks, Prof. I'll stand. I slept well last night."

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY (seriously): "Gentlemen, we called you to ask your reason for disobeying faculty orders by missing more than the permitted amount of chapel exercises."

JONES (drawling): "You see, Professor, it's this way. I have been conducting revival services this month, consequently it is rather late when I retire. Then, since I only have one 7:45 class which is Bible, I just sleep 'till 10. Besides that I am basketball manager and that gives me some prestige around the place.

REGISTRAR: "That's bad, a preacher cutting Bible." (Laughter).

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY: "Well, Mr. Holsinger, what's your excuse?"

HOLSINGER: "Well, here, it is impossible for me to come as I must keep the baby while the Mrs. does the housework. When the baby gets several years older I might manage to—"

Enter Jamison and Gingrich.

REGISTRAR: "As I have said before, late as usual." (Pause while they find seats).

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY: "Mr. Stambach, your excuse?"

STAMBACH: "I keep morning watch from 8 to 9 A. M., and feel that I derive more good from it than from chapel." (Awed silence).

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY (to the rest): "What are your excuses?"

The rest, in unison: "WE OVERSLEEP OURSELVES."

REGISTRAR: "That's bad, very bad. Get married and have your wife call you early."

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY: "Well, gentlemen, let me advise you not to let this happen again. Continuing such a course may mean serious results to your privileges as students. You are excused."

Curtain.

ACT II. TIME, MARCH 31, 1915.

Scene I. Office of the President. The faculty in session.

PROFESSOR OF HISTORY: "So to conclude my remarks, Mr. President, I would say that it is high time that we did something. I reprimanded these men two months ago. As a result some of them have been frightened into attendance, but nevertheless there are three, Jamison, McNelly and Stambach who have missed more than half of the exercises. If we allow the matter to pass unnoticed, things will become worse than before. These men must attend chapel or show good reason for not doing so.

Enter Registrar, with McNelly, Jamison and Stambach.

REGISTRAR: "Here they are. I got 'em. Had to pull McNelly out of bed to bring him, though." (Looks of horror).

PRESIDENT: "Be seated, gentlemen. We have called you in because we stand for the highest type of noble manhood and perfect womanhood. To reach such ends we must have co-operation of faculty and students. Co-operation spells success. Now we want your co-operation in the form of your attendance at chapel, etc. Now let me read you the rules governing chapel cuts. (Reads.) 'Any student absent five or more times in each two consecutive months without satisfactory excuse, is debarred from representing the college in athletics, or as manager, or in dramatics, or any other way, and may at the discretion of the faculty forfeit any aid he receives from the college and may also be subject to suspension.' Now, what are your excuses, men?"

JAMISON: "Well, Mr. President, on account of my heavy schedule and my abilities as an entertainer, I am kept up late at night and find it necessary to sleep late in order to get my beauty sleep." (Professor of Oratory smiles approvingly).

PROFESSOR OF PHYSICS: "Well, if it helps your looks, sleep till dinner."

PRESIDENT: "Mr. Stambach, your excuse?"

STAMBACH: "Well, I suppose I have none. I did keep morning watch but I stopped when the revivals at the church were over. It was then that I lost my habit of attending chapel."

Silence. All eyes turn to McNelly.

MCNELLY: "Really, I've been indisposed and the doctor advised plenty of rest and no excitement. That's why I don't come."

PROFESSOR OF ORATORY: "Poor fellow, the singing must grate on your nerves."

PRESIDENT: "Just let me say to you that none of us want to do anything that will hurt the college, but we want to keep it growing greater and greater. Can we do it? We can if we will. Now you are excused, gentlemen."

PROFESSOR OF LATIN: "Mr. President, I think that these men have given very shallow excuses. For my part I think that the person who cannot get up for chapel is of very little value to the school."

DEAN OF WOMEN (earnestly): "I can sympathize with these students who find it hard to get up for chapel. I think that we should consider their excuses valid, even though they may seem trifling. Getting up is by no means the easiest task in one's life."

PROFESSOR OF MATH.: "Evidently not. Especially does this seem true when we look at the record of chapel cuts of faculty members. Some of us would do well to set examples for the students to follow."

PROFESSOR OF BIOLOGY: "Now, to come down to a method of settling this matter, I move, Mr. President, that the following punishments be inflicted: That Mr. Jamison be debarred from the Commencement play, that Mr. Stambach be deprived of his duties as Librarian, and that Mr. McNelly be refused any recognition on the baseball field, with the understanding that if he commits another offense he will be expelled.

PROFESSOR OF GERMAN (quickly): "I second the motion."

PRESIDENT: "It has been moved and seconded as you have heard. Remarks?"

PROFESSOR OF ATHLETICS: "This dare not pass. We must have McNelly on the baseball team. Even though he isn't much of a player; we need his talk to keep things moving."

PRESIDENT: "The remark is well taken. We must be careful of our baseball season."

PROFESSOR OF LATIN: "I would not favor punishment quite as stringent as that proposed by the motion. Mr. Stambach is the best Librarian that I have. Without him the library force will be almost wholly feminine. This should not be allowed."

PRESIDENT: "I think that we can arrange matters satisfactorily without the removal of Mr. Stambach."

PROFESSOR OF ORATORY: "I, too, am opposed to the motion as stated. I might agree if it didn't include Mr. Jamison, but under such circumstances I can't. The commencement play will be unsuccessful without him. I have no one who could take the part of Hamlet. I think the punishment should be changed."

PRESIDENT: "I ask that the motion be voted down. The services of these men are needed by their respective departments.

PROFESSOR OF BIBLE: "Who winds the clock chust now?"

PRESIDENT: "That job is filled from last year. Any more remarks?"

CHORUS: "Question!"

PRESIDENT: "Question called for all in favor, Aye."

PROFESSORS IN GERMAN AND BIOLOGY: "Aye!"

PRESIDENT: "All opposed, Nay."

CHORUS: "Nay."

PRESIDENT: I declare the motion lost!"

PROFESSOR OF BIBLE: "I move that we sentence these fellows to hard labor in Physics. I—as many years as it takes them to pass."

PROFESSOR OF ORATORY: "I second the motion."

PRESIDENT: "Remarks."

PROFESSORS BIOLOGY AND GERMAN (unison): "That's worse than the other!"

PROFESSOR OF PHYSICS: "Have a heart. There are too many boneheads in that class already. Half of this year's class will have to repeat next year. I think that the motion should die."

CHORUS: "Question!"

PRESIDENT: "The question has been called for. Those in favor signify by Aye."

CHORUS: "Aye."

PRESIDENT: "Those opposed by Nay."

PROFESSORS GERMAN, BIOLOGY AND PHYSICS: "Nay! !"

PRESIDENT: "I declare the motion carried. Scentenced to Physics I. What a fate!"

On Prof. H. E. W.

What do you think a Prof. would do,
If a question were asked and nothing he knew?
There is one who knows and it works O. K.
I will tell you about it without delay.
It's merely this—
As I said before, don't know, can't tell you!

In Chemistry, Math is easy enough,
Only add and subtract plus a little bluff,
But oft the Prof. gives up in despair,
Fruitlessly tries his math to repair.
But finally says—
As I said before, don't know, can't tell you!

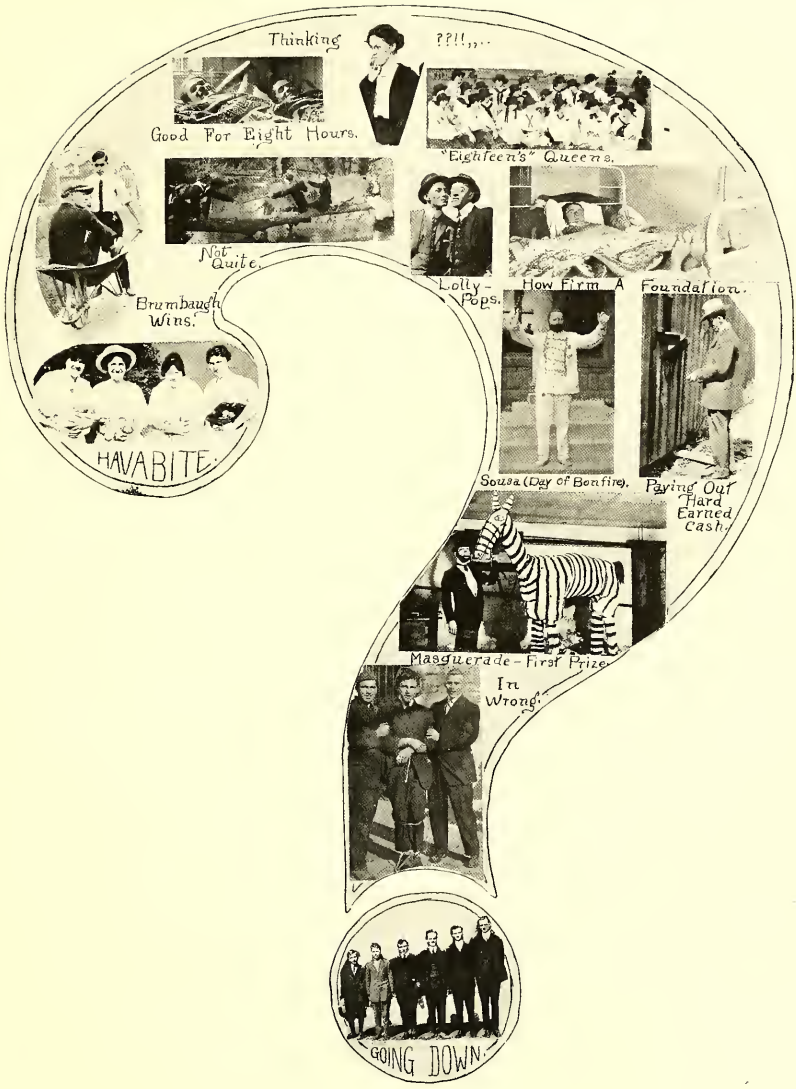

But Prof's alive, now don't you fret,
For get a wife, he did you bet.
When asked how he would like the change,
He answered in a tone so strange
And smiled—
As I said before, don't know, can't tell you!

Found in Zuse's Room

ON November the ninth, the minister's sons held a burial ceremony on the Annville football field, where they laid to rest the preachers, alias, the defenders of the faith,—score, 18-0. The last song of the rite was, "O what a change." The sons of ministers with shining and angelic countenances, administered the last rites to the narrow-minded sons of Abraham. At the blow of the whistle, the sons of ministers bore down upon their heavier opponents, and in the words of Noah, completely swamped the preachers. The term "Ecclesiastical Policy" had no meaning when applied to the tribe of Abraham. John Jones, captain of the Israelites, and also the owner of a 1903 Model Sears, Roebuck and Co. motorcycle, became so aggravated that he immediately lost his football ability through the waywardness of the tongue and told the umpire to go to a place that begins with H and ends with L. It is supposed he mean a hospital, at least it is a place where he adjures his congregation on the Sabbath to keep away. A messenger of the faith to fall from grace and betray his trust before a throng of people just because he is on the wrong team should be tried for bigamy. Jonah with his three days spent in the whale's society (even though he got some useful inside information), preserved his dignity to that extent to be a gentleman and would have thought this an ungalvanized atrocity. But this is not all. It has been ascertained by probing committees that these preachers spent a gay night preceding this game, sort of a spiritual preparation, but not on bended knee, for they were rousting and broiling about and full of much glee, if glee is the proper name for a spiritual awakening. It has not been proved, but it is said that two members of the preachers' team were seen drinking a bottle of ginger ale. Thus one cannot be much surprised at the awful manner in which the children of Israel were slaughtered on this occasion.

Vy Men Get Balthetted

VEN your hair gets ashamed off you unt begins to lief you, dat is balthettedness. Den you get ashamed off your bald het, but you don't get rid off dat so soon like your hair.

People nearly aways get hair sooner or later unt den sum lose em again. Dere are two kinds off hair,—domestik unt imported, unt sum peeple vear both kinds at de same time. Its not dat dey vant imported hair so much, but sometimes ve must haf it unt sum peeple now make a reel gut bizness off balthettedness.

Ve speak always off men gettin' balthetted, but de vay vimmen fite unt pull hair nowadays it ain't no wonder dey wud be balthetted too, may be dats vere most off de imported hair goes.

It's a vonder ve ain't all balthetted by dis dime. Maybe you vonder vy I said so sence ve ain't. Vell it is chust dis vay, de vetter changes so quwick chust now frum colt to hot dat in vinter dime a man cud as vell as not get his het scalded unt chust so soon vud de decorating von his het kum off. But dats not all.

Vun man vunce luffed a goil unt ven he thot it vos dime to make herself his vishes nown, she did not dink de same as he did unt she shipped him out. Now, de hart strinks are connected vid de het un ven his hart vos broken unt de hart strinks disconnecshioned from de het unt off drop de hair from his het. Same vay vid de married men.

Vunce a man vent in bathing at de seashore unt ven he kame out he vos balt unt he sed: "It is me so cold, I sink I must freeze mine self." But what became off his hair? Vell, de craps got crapped unt grabbed de hair off his het. Maybe he insulted de craps or somesing chust as bat.

Von nite a man vos helt up vit a revolver unt before de batman got a chanct to shute at his hair he got balt. He vos scairt so bat dat his hair schtood up schatrait unt chumped off. To eggsplain all dis chust rite, won wude get nerwous preparation.

Von man lost his hair bekause he liffed in a cafe all de time. Chust like de fish in Manmos Cafe ven dey lose deir eyes unt hair. So dis man cud not use his hair to show, unt den it got useless unt he lost it. Mine frends diss is wery satt, dis shure is nossing to laff about.

Ain't it funny de monkys nebber get balt. Off cource dey don't luff, don't fight, don't liff in cafes unt don't vash in de ocean, unt won vill clean de oders het unt don't look fer no pay. Chust vait tell dey get civilized unt dey will too find out vot it means to get balt.

Fellers dat git balt young is caust by de goils playing vit it too much unt it drops off frum overwork unt de hart strinks ain't stronk enuff to holt it on his het. Speschully ven de olt man heists im off de premeses unt his hair is scairt unt shtands shtrait up unt liefs him in disgust.

Next Sebtembar dis subjek vill be discust again unt ve'll begin vere ve left off.

No Title and No Author

About one hundred years ago
With wildernesses here,
The man with powder in his gun
Went out to hunt the deer.

But now the thing is somewhat changed
With quite a different plan,
With powder on her face, the dear
Goes out to hunt the man.

Parody On "The Raven"

Once upon a midnight balmy
While I slept so sweet and calmly,
Over a room so bright and airy,
Where there dwells a little fairy,
While I slumbered, sweetly slumbered,
Suddenly there came a lumbering
As of thunder in the hall,
But said I, 'tis croquet balls,
Only that and nothing more.

Oh, distinctly I recall,—
It was in the dark, dark hall,
And each rogue a giggling loudly,
Sought her room in roughneck floor.
Eagerly I wished the dean,
Visibly could then be seen,
For from my dreams so rudely shaken—
Anger only felt I
For the bad, mischievous maiden,
Who bears the name of Katie
Here for evermore.

And then the low muffled whisperings
On third floor
Thrilled me—filled me
With desires often felt before.
So that then,—to still my
Conscience weak small voice,
I stood repeating—'tis those girls again,
Who are scheming against
Some poor grinds' peaceful dreaming,
That it is and nothing more.

Presently my soul grew stronger,
Hesitating then no longer—
Girls! said I, truly your forgiveness I implore
But the fact is, I was sleeping,
And so roughly from my dreaming,

Was aroused by the rumbling
Of those balls across the hall.
That I scarcely knew where I was—
Till I opened wide the door—
'Twas darkness there and nothing more.

Deep into that darkness peering,
Long we stood there, wondering, fearing,
Doubting, dreaming dreams we mortals
Often dared to dream before.
Soon the silence about was broken.
And the crowing gave a token
That the cock had been mistaken,
And took midnight for the morn.
That conclusion then we made,
And silently hastened on our way,
Merely this and nothing more.

Back into my chamber turn,
All my fears within me burn.
Soon I heard a rapid tapping,
Each time louder than before.
Surely, said I, sure there is
Someone at my door.
Let me see then, who is there,
And this mystery explore.
Let my heart be still a moment
And this mystery explore.
'Tis the girls and nothing more.

Open then I flung the door,
Which afterwards I much deplored,
For in stepped our stately dean
With not a very pleasant mien.
Not the least obeisance made she,
Only a moment stopped and staid she;
And then, upon my innocent shoulders,
Laid the blame.
Afterward I then resolved—
Nevermore.

In Conclusion

YOU have looked over this, the Annual of the 1916 class. Now, teachers, students and friends,—please follow the course of least resistance and file your criticisms with the Annual Board as soon as possible. We hope that many will adhere to this old custom.

If you are liberal with your suggestions, it will be due, we doubt not, to the fact that you are versed on all the details and technicalities associated with the getting out of this book. Of course we know you could have done much better—that is understood, so you need not hesitate to pass judgment, and remember in case there are two alternatives in punctuation, grammatical construction, etc., you are under obligation to uphold the one we did not adopt.

Taking into consideration, however, that the psychological mental apparatuses of individuals are so unmistakably similar; and that tastes of all persons run in the same channel; we are sure that this book will meet with your approval.
